The curtain is dropping on the Didsbury Movie Gallery this summer, costing five people jobs and leaving this town without video store.

"It's really upsetting. This town has so little for entertainment anyway; now people will have to drive to Carstairs to get videos and games," said Aynsley

There are so few jobs in this town to start with, let alone evening shifts that work around her family's schedule.

The other four staff haven't announced their plans to move on yet, probably too busy reorganizing shelves as movies and games are priced to sell, Laverdiere said.

"I think everyone is still hoping someone will buy the company out ... we are told it could still happen."

Movie Gallery Canada Inc is expected to shutter 131 Movie Gallery and VHQ stores across the nation and 51 in this province, according to the company handling the liquidation.

"The at-home video rental market has become increasingly more challenging with the rise of strong competition from cable providers, Internet, kiosk operators and subscription-based mail delivery servces," said David Peress, president of

Helipad absent in AHS capital budget

BY TAMARA CUNNINGHAM Review Staff

Alberta Health Services landed a decision this month not to include the Didsbury helipad in its capital budget.

It's the first verdict made about the pad since the medical superboard shut it down 'temporarily' last November.

Didsbury residents have been voicing questions about the helipad since the province announced a 100-bed continuing care facility was going to be built at the hospital this year-and not receiving much in the way of answers.

Dr. Dianne Smith asked Health Minister Gene Zwozdesky during his tour of the hospital a month ago if the capital plan would include the helipad.

"As a physician this is a real concern for me," she said.

But Zwozdesky wasn't sure what the "crystal ball" would yield.

"I have not honestly looked at the helipad needs across the province but I'm gathering the information and will get there very soon."

According to Mayor Brian Wittal, Alberta Health Services initially said the helipad would be upgraded or moved once the 100-bed facility was constructed. He was later told AHS had to "go back in discussion and see where the whole thing was in their capital budgot."

Wittal hadn't heard anything since and assumed the helipad was still up in the air. "Am I concerned -yeah, a bit. The helipad is very critical to the community and surrounding area especially as we get more seniors here."

"I'm not sure at what point I need to start looking at playing hardball ... I am hoping cooperation works."

According to AHS officials, the helicopter landing pad had to be shut down after a private aviation consultant, hired to do inspections in 2008, found it in violation of its registered status – which requires the site to be located a certain distance from buildings.

The pad is now surrounded by facilities like Aspen Ridge Lodge that make it dangerous for air ambulances to land. As a result, Transport Canada requires the medical superboard to bring the site up to snuff as a certified landing pad. The improvement could cost $100,000; the most expensive helipad fix AHS would be expected to do in the province.

When they shut the pad

When they shut the pad down in November, officials said the organization would give careful consideration on whether to pay the dollars to fix the helipad or close it permanently.

Eight months later AHS says it still hasn't made a final decision – and any fixes have been postponed this year.

"We are in limbo right now - there is no timeline and I'm not going to pretend there is," said Gordon Bates, manager of provincial air ambu-

The helipad does not require simple fixes, it has to be moved and as of now there are no plans to do that.

In the meantime, patients will continue to be shuttled to the Olds-Didsbury Airport for air ambulance services and some discussion will happen with residents in this community.

AHS recently took control of the air ambulance program from Alberta Health and Wellness, last April, and has transferred the responsibility of the helipads to the group. The switch has stalled talks with local politicians.

"Nothing is final yet and I think our next step will be to talk with the community about our options to put a new helipad," Bates said.

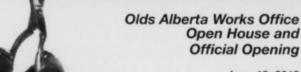

Sheila Rougeau, spokesperson for Alberta Health Services, said when considering whether to create a new pad there are also issues of new buildings being constructed. The last thing they want to do is spend $100,000 and find out 12 months later that another building could be constructed in the flight path.

"In a perfect world it would be wonderful if we could do everything but the reality is that it's just not in the finances," she said.

"That's not to say it won't ever happen. I believe someone from Didsbury asked AHS if it was possible for the community to do fundraising and absolutely, AHS would gladly enter those discussions."

Extra safety measures could save lives, teen tells council

BY TAMARA CUNNINGHAM

A 14-year-old is advocating for change on Rge. Rd. 1.5, a year after a Didsbury teenager fishtailed off the stretch and plunged into a coulee.

Kayla Ellingson is calling for guardrails on a section of the road outh of the community, and she's prepared to help pay.

"I want this so bad. If it was up maybe it could prevent bad acci-dents from happening, like the one that Rita (MacIntosh) was in, she said.

"I'll help fundraise or go door to-door gathering signatures for a petition – whatever it takes."

Town council heard Westglen student's plea at a public meeting last Tuesday and say they'll look into it. Their support will depend on how many taxpay ers use the stretch and how much the rails would cost

"I'm not sure if it's worth looking into or not. I guess administration will let us know," said Councillor Rick Mousseau, adding there have been two serious acci dents on the stretch in the last six

The issue of safety was cast in the spotlight May 2009, when 15-year-old Rita MacIntosh lost control of a 1999 GMC Sierra as crested a hill. The vehicle fish-tailed and rolled more than 40 metres down into a coulee. Rita was killed, while her boyfriend, 16-year-old Tanner Watt, was hos-pitalized in serious condition. Fifteen-year-old Vicki Keller was also injured.

"The accident was hard on everybody and people really ques-tioned safety on that road but when time passed, so did the issue," Juanita said.

Ellingson remembered. She often thought about it – especially when she visited Rita's roadside memorial.

"I'd see people take that corner so fast and it just sent chills up my spine ... they get so close to the edge."

It wasn't until she heard ech in Olds about Rachel's Challenge, an initiative geared towards empowering youth to make a difference, that she start-ed looking for a solution.

Her family is throwing their support behind her project.

Council gets drastic pay

BY TAMARA CUNNINGHAM

The mayor's pay sparked debate Tuesday as councillors agonized over how high to go.

It was a balancing act for elected officials who were trying to give the mayor a "fair" pay raise to compensate for hours spent as town steward, while making it high enough to entice potential newcomers to the election race

The decision was spurred by a town-commissioned citizen panel, which suggested an increase to stay on par with other municipalities in the region.

The panel's report said the average salary for mayors is $15,105, while mayor currently makes $15,240. Councillor Gail Nowlan said the salary seems too

"It should be higher but I don't know to what," she said, during the council meeting Tuesday night. Councillor Ernie Ryckman suggested the mayor be paid for a pre-determined amount of hours each month, but chief administrative officer Roy Brown, cautioned the electorate "may not feel comfortable with the hours the mayor keeps and will speak out about that and speak out very loudly

"I think it should be kept open ... I mean the mayor may not be too busy in July or August but he is extremely buy in the spring. It's hard to pinpoint

That didn't deter councillors, who voted to increase the mayor's salary by 18 per cent to $18,000 a year. The salary covers 40 hours a month. Any extra time spent on the job will earn the mayor $37.50 an

Brown said the mayor usually works 50 to 70 hours a month, putting the salary anywhere from $21,780 to Councillors voted themselves a 54 to 62 per cent councillors voted themselves a 54 to 52 per cent increase, bumping the pay of the deputy mayor to the regional average of $11,760 and councillors' to $10,320. The salary increases don't include allowances and benefits and will come into effect after the election, November 1.

"We have always struggled with pay increases. I mean it doesn't look good to all of a sudden have increases of 20 to 30 per cent ... then again we need to keep (salaries) on par with other communities and pay people fairly," said Mayor Brian Wittal.

"We are not overspending taxpayers' dollars but not underpaying either."

The increase to pay packets is also geared towards enticing newcomers to enter the election race this October. In the last election councillors won their seats by acclamation and with at least one councillor - Councillor Jason Brander - bowing out this year there is some concern about succes

"We are hearing questions and concerns from residents who aren't happy with the way things are going so I hope they will step up, bring fresh ideas and help change things going forward," Wittal said. "I think knowing that people will be somewhat

Three years ago council created a policy to increase wages by the provincial cost of living index, but has refused the increases these past last two years. They could start making the increases again to avoid such large jumps in remuneration in the future. Wittal said

High school fixes field gaffes

BY TAMARA CUNNINGHAM

Didsbury High School's field is back on track

The school received up to $100,000 last October from Chinook's Edge School Division to finish the infield, which has experienced delays since 2007.

According to administrators, when the school first broke ground three years ago the infield wasn't built properly and collected water whenever it rained. That meant athletes couldn't use the field during the wet season – nearly half a year.

Curtis Dick, vice-principal of Didsbury High School, says the field gaffes are on the mend. Five feet of clay and soil have been dumped on at least one side of the infield to level it out and a drainage system installed so water week, the school finished hydro-seeding the infield. It's hoped the field will be ready for use again next fall. Any holdbacks, however, and athletes will have to wait another year to bring sports outdoors

"We think the seed will take and ideally be ready for people again in the fall but until then we are closing the track and field down temporarily to the public," Dick said.

'Quite a few people seem to go out there with their dogs or use the track to run after school and on week-ends but that will have to be put on hold here, until we

When the infield is done DHS will start fundraising to put rubber on the asphalt track. The cost of the addition is approximately $212,000 - but if finished would be the only one of its kind between Calgary and Red Deer.

Preparing for wilderness is necessary all year long

DAN SINGLETON

The recent death of an elderly Calgary couple from exposure on an isolated, little travelled roadway in West Central Alberta highlights the need for residents and visitors alike to always be prepared when venturing into the region's forested wilderness.

The bodies of Allen and Margaret Berrington were discovered on an isolated dirt road about 40 kilometres west of Water Valley on June 2. The couple's vehicle, out of gas and abandoned, was discovered about three kilometres away.

Subsequent autopsies revealed that both Margaret and Allen had died of exposure.

Why and how the couple ended up in the isolated West Country area remains a mystery that may never be solved, leaving many, many unanswered ques-

And while the tragedy has shocked and saddened many people, it also highlights the vital importance of travellers being prepared for the unexpected.

Recently retired Sundre fire chief John Whitesell, who spent three decades responding to calls in the West Country, says one sure thing his experience taught him was that the weather in the region can be very unsettled, posing a real danger to anyone caught unprepared.

"Basically everyone needs to have adequate supplies every time they head out west," said Whitesell. That means adequate clothing, food, water and a first aid kit. And make sure someone knows where you are and when you'll be coming back."

Adam Loria, the newly appointed public information officer for EMS for Alberta Health, echoes Whitesell's comments.

"For backcountry safety in general we advise to plan ahead and leave details of your trip with someone back home, including where you'll be and when you'll be back," said Loria, a paramedic.

The Alberta Emergency Management Agency says every motorist heading into wilderness areas should have an emergency kit in their vehicle, and that kit should include at least a flashlight, radio, water (six litres per person) non-perishable food, candles and matches, and at least one change of clothing

Sgt. Patrick Webb, who speaks for the RCMP in Alberta, says there is no indication that the Berringtons had an emergency kit in their vehicle.

Whether having those supplies would have made a difference in the Berringtons' case remains a question that cannot be answered. Yet maybe, just maybe, it could have made the difference, quite literally, between life and death.

The bottom line is anyone planning to visit the wilderness areas in the region - or even someone who regularly spends time in the backcountry would be smart and prudent to bring along an emergency preparedness kit.

It takes time and effort to be prepared for a trip into the wilderness - but as hard experience has shown, that effort is worthwhile each and every time.

Cub leader had circle of support

I would like to be more specific about the information given in the story 'Didsbury scouts cele-brate 100 years of history' in the June 8 edition of the Didsbury Review.

I did not have to look after 30 Wolf Cubs on my own. When I began as Akela, the leader of the pack, a senior Boy Scout, Norman Clarke, helped me. He's a relative of Ernie Clarke, a man who will be honoured at our celebration on August 21st. Ernie was the last scout left of the original Boy Scout troop of 1910. He died May 3, 1986.

Brian Wilkins was another scout helper and in the fall of 1958 Ken Gillrie became my first adult assistant leader. Later I had Elinor Clarke as Raksha and also Jack De Winter in the 1960s

No leader in her right mind would take 30 or so boys of Cub age on a day trip to Calgary alone. Ken Gillrie and I did take them down through the basement of the Hudson's Bay on an invisi-ble rope and, yes, I did say if they dropped the rope they were

I am no longer a leader but I am still on group committee and enjoy seeing the young ones and their parents during the 'going up' ceremony at the end of the year. This year was special, as one of my great-grandsons was invested as a Beaver.

Changes good for rural Albertans

With this year's student loan process opening recently, I wanted to take a minute to say how pleased we are with the provincial government's recent changes to the Alberta Student Funding

As educators focused on, among other elements, agriculture, horti-culture, land and environmental management, we were most gratified that the Alberta government consulted us on this last spring and chose to implement some of our suggestions

In the months following those consultations, the provincial gov ernment has made it easier for farm families to be fairly assessed for need-based government loans and Farm families are a key demographic of prospective students for an institution like Olds College.

Parents are no longer required to declare the net value of the relief due to the fact that farms often have more value than cashflow – a fact that often made potential students from farms ineligible for financial awards

It is now easier for students from farms to acquire a post-secondary education and we think that is great news for rural Albertans.

Students interested in capitalizing on these changes may apply online (alis.alberta.ca) or pick up paper applications at either their high school or college of their choice

We wish those future leaders all the best in their efforts

NOTICE

Bylaw 2010-05 - False Alarm

The Town of Didsbury Council deem it necessary to pass a bylaw to regulate and control burglary, robbery and intrusion alarms.

The Council of the Town of Didsbury has the authority under the Municipal Government Act, being chapter M-26.1 of the Revised Statues of Alberta, 2005 and amendments thereto, to enact bylaws for the peace, order and good governance of the municipality and to promote the safety and welfare of its citizens.

It appears that there have been excessive numbers of false alarms requiring emergency responses from police and such unnecessary responses pose a threat to the safety of the police and members of the public by creating unnecessary hazards, and in addition result in unnecessary expenses to the taxpayers of the Town of Didsbury.

The Council of the Town of Didsbury deems it desirable and necessary in order to protect and preserve the safety and welfare of citizens to regulate and control alarm systems so as to reduce such false alarms to a minimum.

Every person who violates the provisions of this bylaw or who suffers or permits or omits to do any act or thing to be done in compliance or violation of this bylaw is guilty of an offence:

False alarms could mean fines

Bogus alarms tripped in this community could ring up extra costs for businesses and homeowners

Beginning this month, any building police respond to more than once in a year for a false alarm, will earn the owner a $100 fine. The third offence will be a $200 fine and the fourth, $400.

It's hoped the penalties help the town manage growing number of false alarms being triggered in town over the last two years

Police responded to 84 bogus sirens at businesses and homes last year and 77 in 2008.

Fifty-eight of those alarms re from commercial and industrial buildings and 11 rang out more than once, according to a report from the local RCMP detachment.

An unnamed business in town had its alarm ring eight times in a year.

Residence alarms sounded less often, with 26 in 2009. Police responded to three homes more than once a one residence had two false alarms over the year.

Police respond to every call, although 99 per cent are usually bogus, said RCMP Sgt. Jeff Jacobson.

Councillors, concerned police are being taken away from more important calls, had their first glimpse of the new bylaw last Tuesday. They agreed the fines weren't strict enough and boosted them by anywhere from $25 to $250.

They also agreed that writen warnings or fines are only effective over a 12-month period before the slate is wiped clean and offenders start again at the first offence

Non-Profit's request gets thumbs down

A non-profit aiding abused women in the Didsbury area, was turned down for funding

The Community Services Board told councillors, Tuesday, that despite an Tuesday, appeal and show of financial spending by the Calgary-based non-profit, Inspiring Change - Peer Support for Abused Women, they remained unsure the money they would be used for Didsbury projects.

Dragons miss podium

The Didsbury Dragons' run at provincials fell short of the podium in Medicine Hat this month.

A trio of athletes - James Lefebvre, Michelle Pochapsky and Mackenzie Code - had high hopes for their performthe provincial track and field meet after high rankings in the zone competition.

Lefebyre won first in intermediate triple jump and second in long jump. He also scored a spot in discus for a Pochapsky made a solid per-formance in zones, taking second in girls intermediate level long jump and second in javelin, while Code took sec ond in the 400-metre race with a 1:06:12 time.

But the Dragons weren't able to carry on the momentum against south central athletes. the 400 metre, placing seventh overall at Pochapsky took 10th in long jump – of 14 – and did not place in javelin while Lefebrye took 13th in long jump and fifth in triple jump.

Blind teen conquers mountain hike

BY TAMARA CUNNINGHAM Review Staff

Tregarthen is blind and the hike - with other stu-dents from Didsbury High School's Grade 9 class was his first. He made it his goal to finish as his peers would, though he had no idea he was committing himself to climbing a mountain.

"I had this picture in my head that a hike was on a flat trail. This felt treacherous. There were rocks and logs, even snow when we got near the top," he said.

Jeff Royston, a personal trainer at Force Fitness, has been stopping into the

Soapbox racers build their cars for Saturday's derby

"They sit at the top of the ramp there in their little cars. They choke the steering wheel and lean forward. Their eyes are as big as dinner plates as they get this look of anticipation. Boy, is it something to see," he said.

Pieper, a Lions Club member, has been working the so box derby since its inception nine years ago and plans to be on hand to watch the latest race, June 19. The competition starts at 8:30 a.m when contestants will travel at speeds of 30 to 35 mph along Hwy 582, next to Reimer International.

The event has become a Father's Day tradition. Families spend weeks wrenching and ratcheting the axles and steering components on their derby car.

First-time racer, eight-year-old Kobi Chant is still helping his dad cut and measure the wood to build his car. They'll be stepping construction up this week as the race approaches.

"I like racing, my brother and I do it on our bikes, so I thought this would be fun," he said.
He just has to remember to wear his helmet. It's something he might forget in all the excitement, he said.

His father, Scott, is feeling just as excited. His son will be following in the family footsteps – somewhat. Kobi's grandfa-ther has been racing stock and legend cars for years.

'He's seen racing on TV and built matchbox cars in Cubs, so this is the next step. He is really excited. Nervous too. I can't wait to see how it goes

Didsbury seniors surprised with prestigious award

CUNNINGHAM

Didsbury Senior Support Services received a morale boost last week after earning one of three service awards in the province.

It wasn't the first award the organization took in but it was one of the more prestigious recognitions, said Jean Freeman, vicepresident.

Eighty organizations across Alberta were considered for the 2010 Minister's Seniors Service Awards but only three received the bowl-like tro phy. The Second Wind Dreams Volunteers in Edmonton and Sunshine

Club Resident Council of Hanna also took in the

You just wish it came with a cheque," Freeman joked as people came up to take pictures with the award.

The organization is the first to admit it's been through a tough year. Funding cutbacks have made program offerings difficult. Their mobile library, geared towards offering seniors talking and large print books, is one initiative to fold under the shortage of dollars.

To earn recognition in spite of hardships is "a big deal," Freeman said.

The group drives seniors to medical appointments, offers health and fitness seminars, guest speakers and games and helps the over 50 crowd fill out government forms. Recently the group pur-chased $8,000 worth of fitness equipment for the public to use and started a small community garden.

Wittal was among 170 people at last Thursday's senior event that helped celebrate the award. Olds-Didsbury-Three Hills MLA Richard Marz announced the recognition, originally presented Edmonton, to local seniors.

"It's a real pleasure to recog-Didsbury and District Senior Support Services, who play a vital role in encourage ing seniors in my constituency to stay active and engaged in the community through a variety of programs," he said. The crowd cheered – sharing in the honour – and not more loudly than Willard Swalm, a former board member.

"They are very deserving, and Despite the recession and to push ahead and continue to help our community .. lot of hard work has gone on behind the scenes," he said.

This was the first time Didsbury Senior Support Services has won the minister's award. They were given a commemorative certificate for being nominated for the same recog-nition in 2005. The group also won non-profit of the year from the Chamber of Commerce

Outlaws talk achievement

It has been a very busy year for the Outlaws 4-H Horse Club. In April we had lots of rides preparing for the mock show with Silversage. It was a great day to show and everybody had tons of fun. On May 1, we were supposed to have highway cleanup but it was cancelled due to snow. We had it on May 8 instead. We would like to thank the Dairy Queen in Olds for the free ice cream, a donation in support of the cleanup.

We had quite a few rides preparing for the District Horse Show in the Caluori Pavilion. We held western, English, trail and rodeo events. It started at 8 a.m. and finished around 6 p.m. On May 27 we went to the Calgary Stampede grounds and set up for the 4-H on Parade. This year we went for a Christmas theme and the weather cooperated with us and sent us snow. It was a fun weekend and two of our members received high point and reserve high point. Level two, Jordan Schaber, got reserve high point and Mackenzie Kirton in level three got high point. In multi-judging, two of our juniors placed. Carissa Fruson got second in judging horses and Jordon Schaber got first in sheep. We would like to thank Lisa Wieben for being our riding instructor. We all learned a lot.

On June 17, we will be having our year-end achievement

On June 17, we will be having our year-end achievement banquet. We are still collecting batteries for our fundraiser. Please call Dave at (403) 507-1852 for pickup. We are looking forward to the Regional Horse Show in July in Olds' Caluori Pavilion. The venue will also hold the Provincial 4-H Horse Show in August for level four and above.

DIDSBURY DENTAL CENTRE

My dear patients and families,

Dr. Khattra

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your continued trust and confidence in permitting me to care for you and your dental needs through the years. It is with mixed emotions that I announce my departure from my practice to pursue my dream to study medicine.

In an effort to ensure that my patients continue to receive the best possible care, I have carefully evaluated a number of candidates who were interested in assuming my practice. I have selected Dr. Ravinder (Tanya) Khattra who I believe is a caring and talented dentist who possesses the highest qualifications from the top ranked dental school of North America and is extremely well skilled in all phases of dentistry with special interest in providing dental care to children of all ages.

Dr. Tanya has been professionally involved in dentistry over 10 years. She had the opportunity to experience the profession as an assistant, a hygienist, and as a dentist. She has earned her Doctor of Dental Surgery (D.D.S) degree from University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio. Although she provides comprehensive general dentistry for the entire family, she has an avid interest in Implantology and has earned her fellowship from the International Congress of Oral Implantology. She is a strong believer in continuing education as a means to ensure that her patients receive the highest quality dental care.

Dr. Tanya has a warm personality and an exquisite background. She is committed to providing her patients with personalized care and state-of-the-art dentistry. She is a competent, careful practitioner. The office location and telephone number will remain the same. I am happy to let you know that the team along with Dr Ed Williamson who has been an Associate will remain with the practice.

I want to thank all of you. Many of you were more than patients, but friends who I looked forward to seeing at each and every visit. Have faith and trust in Dr. Khattra as she is a gifted dentist who truly puts her heart, soul and technical excellence into her work. You will find her to be especially approachable and a good listener. She maintains a calm yet caring demeanor and has an outstanding eye for detail. After you meet Tanya, I know you will be delighted that I've passed the torch on to her. You will be in wonderful hands!

Sincerely,

Dr. Ken McCracken

Fewer students sign on for scholarships

tuition has Soaring potential post-secondary students edging away from scholarships.

So believes Hilda Mari Hansen, head Didsbury High School scholarship committee, who has seen a sharp drop in applicants this year.

Twenty-five students won a total of $33,000 in scholarships in 2009. This year, the number of applicants has fallen by 60 per cent

"It really surprised me but from what I hear a lot of students are putting school on hold because the tuition is too high," Hansen said.

"Even if they apply for a scholarship, the money will only pay a portion of their semester."

The province recently approved tuition hikes for select programs in Alberta's two largest universitie

The University of Alberta tuition will rise between 15 and 66 per cent in engineering, pharmacy, grad studies and business, while the University of Calgary will see a 30 to 40 per cent increase in business commerce and business administration programs.

The changes aren't expected to affect registration in the fall but it remains a point intimidation, said Didsbury High School grad-

People know at some point the tuition is going to be rough ... so they're not bothering to sign up," said Blake Shields, a Grade 12 student.

"I mean it's too bad, but it will probably open up more room in programs."

Other students are shying away from scholarships because they are either too busy dealing with academic pressures or feel intimidated by the process, added Will Hadway, who will be getprocess, ting his diploma this spring.

Hansen has tried to help by holding workshops on the application process.

"So many students don't even know where to start so I help them figure out how to write letters or find available scholar-ships," she said.

The Didsbury dollars are available to students with a 65 per cent average in 50 credits of their choosing. Each candidate has notable community involvement, school citi-zenship and academic achievements.

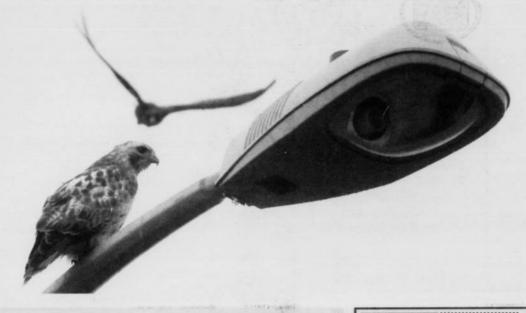

"To me, these youth are all about participation in life and to me that's what makes a citizen, not the genius," Hansen said.

The scholarship com-mittee is shooting to collect about $30,000 before students graduate, June 25. The collection will be a little easier this spring with businesses recovering from the recession.

"I think people recog nize how important it is to help kids follow their dreams, so those who couldn't contribute last year because of the reces sion, are stepping up now," she said.

NIMBY SYNDROME -A hawk hunkers down and holds its ground on a lightpost as a crow repeatedly dives and attacks it Thursday evening. The crow put this hawk on the run for quite some time as it tried repeatedly to get him out of their neighbourhood. "I didn't know how hard to pull my hand brake when I got to the bottom so I yanked it as hard as I could. The wheels lifted and I spun around, at 180 degrees over the finish line," he said.

It looked like a rock star win. People loved it - and it was completely by accident, he said.

There are about three racers pre-reg istered to date and more are expected to turn out at the event. The derby usually draws about 20 participants, although the Lions Club is always hoping for about 32 entries

They need more kids to keep the sustainable. Larger numbers could also increase the scope of the

"At the end of the day, we want to keep this thing going because it's about family togetherness and that's impor-tant in this day and age," Pieper said.

"Mothers, fathers, aunts, uncles and siblings get together to work with the kids on this – and those kids, they end up being the hero on race day. Speeding down that hill at 30 mph with their bums just two inches off the ground.

Injured fox treated

Carstairs veterinarian fixes wild animal's broken leg

BY SYLVIA COLE Review Staff

Tom Picherack, veterinary doctor in Carstairs, has a patient he's never had before - a young fox.

The four-month-old, since named Moxie, was brought into the vet Wednesday morning with a broken leg.

"It's a clean break that happened in the right spot," said Picherack explain-ing that it didn't break in an area of the bone that still needs to grow.

The fox underwent surgery on Friday and had a plate put in her leg.

Moxie is making herself at home ecovering at the vet and is fed dog food from a tongue depressor stick

Picherack is hoping to leave her near a residence of a rural family or offer her to Rocky View Wildlife Recovery if they accept foxes for rehabilitation.

"Because she's young there is a chance she will become dependent on humans." The trouble here, he explains, is she would be used to regular feedings and comfort.

"If she lives near a home she can then learn to be by herself but still have somewhere to turn for food and shelter while she gets used to her surroundings again.
